A British aviator is reported to have dropped a bomb within 200 yards of the Kaiser's headquarters one day during the holidays.

Another candidate has announced himself a candidate for Governor in a message of 3,500 words. He evidently wanted the voter to take at least two bites at him.

MANN LAW VIOLATED

Is Charge Upon Which Jas. R. McClure Was Arrested Saturday.

RELEASED ON $500 BOND.

Victim Alleges She Was Brought From Tennessee For Immoral Purposes.

James R. McClure, the photographer doing business in the third story of the Garnett building on the corner of Main and Eighth streets, was arrested Saturday by Deputy U. S. Marshal S. H. Byars, on a charge of violating the Mann White Slave law, in transporting a female from one state into another for immoral purposes. The warrant was issued by Mrs. Lillie M. Waters, wife of Herman Waters, of the Edgerton vicinity. The young woman, who is about 18 years old, is a daughter of a farmer named Meacham, and about the first of December she was married to young Waters. A short time thereafter it is alleged that McClure met her at a church in Montgomery county, Tenn., in an automobile and brought her to this city and kept her all night in his studio and sent her to East St. Louis, giving her in all sums of money aggregating $30, telling her that he would follow later and join her there. All of the details of the affair have not been made public. The father of the girl got her back home and a week ago she came to this city and made the affidavit on which McClure was taken into custody. He executed a $500 bond before Commissioner Alvan H. Clark and will answer to the Federal grand jury at Owensboro.

McClure is a middle-aged married man, who has borne a good reputation and Mrs. Waters is a representative of a prominent family of Montgomery county, Tenn.

FRENCH ADVANCE AT HEAVY COST

Along Aisne Valley and Through Champagne District They Are Pushing Their Offensive and Organizing Ground Gained.

TURKS FIERCELY ATTACK THE RUSSIANS

Great Britain's Reply to American Note Occupies the Attention of the British Press and Public in Absence of Important War News.

London, Jan. 11.—The British reply to the American note occupies the attention of the British press and public in the absence of any important news from the battlefields. The German and French official reports of the most recent fighting in the western field are almost a repetition of those issued on the preceding days. A British eye-witness, who has been the official historian of events at the front, lays stress on the important part played by the artillery and high explosives in modern warfare and claims superiority for the allies in artillery, which is being used to its fullest strength.

From the coast to the river Oise, where the country is under water and the rivers are flooded, the big guns have been engaged continuously, but the water and mud prevent the infantry from coming into action. Along the Aisne valley, however, and through the Champagne district as far as western Argonne, the French are pushing their offensive and organizing the ground gained. These gains have been made at heavy cost.

In western Argonne the Germans also claim to have made gains and to have repulsed a French attempt to carry their trenches in the Woivre and in Alsace.

The only news from the east is the German report that the Russian offensive toward Mlawa has failed, their force having been driven back.

In the Caucasus the Turks have made a stand on the frontier near Kara-Urgan and are fiercely attacking the Russian lines.

Seemingly the Russians believe the report that the Turkish cruiser Goeben has been damaged, for their Black sea fleet, which is superior to the Turkish fleet without the Goeben has been attacking Turkish ports and destroying their shipping.

There is no development in the near east beyond the report from Sofia that Guniadoff, former Bulgarian minister of foreign affairs, is leaving for Rome on a semi-official mission, the object of which is to ascertain the attitude of Italy towards the possible future co-ordination of Italo-Bulgarian interests in the war.

J. K. GREER FOUND GUILTY

Paducah Insurance Man Sentenced To Indeterminate Term In Penitentiary.

Paducah, Ky., Jan. 9.—The jury in the case of J. K. Greer, accused of willfully killing Charles Troutman, a young drug clerk to-day returned a verdict of guilty and the penalty was fixed at from seventeen to twenty-one years in prison.

Greer testified that he killed Troutman in self-defense, and witnesses swore that Troutman had threatened Greer's life on account of Miss Pernie Shemwell, a clerk in Greer's office and sweetheart of Troutman. Miss Shemwell, the only eyewitness to the tragedy, when reintroduced, again charged the shooting was unprovoked.

Governor Offers Reward.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 11.—Gov. McCreary has offered a reward of $200 for the arrest of the band of "possum hunters," who killed Edmund Christian, an aged and law-abiding negro at his home on the farm of C. B. Crutchfield, near Trenton, Todd county, December 30. County Judge A. B. Wilkins in his letter accompanying a petition signed by leading citizens, said the murder was atrocious and unprovoked.

SMOKER AT THE AVALON

Was Decided Upon By The H. B. M. A. Friday Night.

DATE SET FOR JAN. 22.

New Committee Named This Time To Make The Arrangements.

The H. B. M. A. held a call meeting Friday night and discussed several pending matters.

Formal notice was received from the Illinois Central Railroad that its company was ready to make physical connection with the Louisville & Nashville road here and pay its part of the expense. The L. & N. is unwilling to make the connection and this clearly defines the issue in the forthcoming litigation.

Another attempt is to be made to give a get together smoker at the Avalon on January 22. A former meeting appointed a committee to arrange for one Dec. 11, but the Committee discussed a banquet instead of a smoker and finally failed to act in the matter. This time nothing more elaborate than a smoker is to be considered and a new committee was named—Jas. O. Cook, J. D. McGowan and Geo. E. Lackey.

The committee will take hold of the matter enthusiastically and get up a big affair to revive the lagging interest. Only two or three regular meetings have been held for several months.

MITCHELL BRINGS SUIT

Thos. Vinson Made Defendant In An Enormous Damage Suit.

Cadiz, Ky., Jan. 11.—Frank B. Mitchell on Friday brought suit against Thomas Vinson for $45,000 damages because of personal injuries alleged to have been received at the hands of the defendant. Mitchell was a tenant of Vinson. A little before Christmas they had a disagreement, which resulted in the shooting of Mitchell by Vinson. The latter, who is one of the wealthiest men in the county, gave himself up and was placed under a bond of $5,000. Mitchell is also well known. He is still alive, and is understood to be slowly recovering from the wounds made by a bullet through his intestines.

CASTE BARS MEDICAL AID

Lowly Social Rank Prevents Hospital
Success for East Indian Coolie
When Wounded.

Many people, unless actually familiar with the ways and customs of the native of India, have little idea as to how superstitious many of these people are, especially with regard to their "caste" system.

Not very long ago a coolie, while passing through the jungle, was severely mauled by a bear. His comrades, however, although they knew that a few miles distant there was a well-equipped hospital, conveyed him to a village where he was kept without medical assistance and in a blazing sun for three days.

When eventually brought into the hospital the man's plight may be better imagined than described. The surgeon and his assistants managed to keep him alive, but his face is so disfigured that he is known in the district as the "reache wallah" (bear man).

The most extraordinary thing
 about this case is that the unfortunate person was, during the time he lay in the hospital, considered by the fraternity to be unclean, with the result that his own wife was, through attending to his requirements, thrown out of "caste."

COMPARES HEAT OF STARS

Scientist Says Stellar Bodies Are
From 2,000 to 27,000 Degrees
In Temperature.

During two years Rosenberg has studied photographically the spectra of the 70 most brilliant stars in the northern hemisphere, from the first to the third order of magnitude. By a comparison of their spectra it is possible to deduce their temperatures.

The results obtained agree well
 with those of Wilsing and Selciner;
 stars of the helium type are the hottest, and the red stars are the coolest. As a specimen, the following temperatures are quoted: Sirius, 27,000 degrees; Vega, 22,000 degrees; Algor, 12,000 degrees; Arcturus, 3,000 degrees; Aldebaran,
 2,000 degrees.

From the aspect and relative displacement of the spectral lines an idea may be formed of the pressure conditions in the atmosphere of the stars studied. Thus Adams has found that in the light-emitting atmosphere of Sirius the pressure is 12 times that existing in the solar photo-sphere, which confirms the hypothesis that Sirius is a simple mass of gas without a defined surface of condensation.

Neutralized Tombs.

Mukden is one of the historic cities of the Far East. It has a population of about three hundred thousand, who live partly in the old walled city and partly in its extensive suburbs. The walled city is a square inclosure, surrounded by massive ramparts, brick built and with fantastically decorated gates. It was the capital of the Manchu dynasty that conquered China in the seventeenth century and reigned at Peking until the establishment of the Chinese republic. To the north and northeast of the city there are two extensive parks, with marble gateways, numerous pagodas and halls
 for ceremonial rites, avenues of colossal figures of uncouth animals carved in stone and grave mounds surrounded by groves of sacred trees. Those parks are the burial places of the Manchurian dynasty, and in the operations around Mukden both the Russian and Japanese commanders took the greatest care that no troops should enter the inclosure and that no injury should be done to the groves and temples.—

GENTLE FORCES OF NATURE

Wonderful Agents That Transform Continents of Granite into Most Fertile Soil.

What adds to the wonder of the earth's crust is that the millstones that did the work and are still doing it are the gentle forces that career above our heads—the sunbeam, the cloud, the air, the frost. The rain's gentle fall, the air's velvet touch, the sun's noiseless rays, the frost's exquisite crystals, these combined are the agents that crush the rocks, pulverize the mountains and transform continents of sterile granite into a world of fertile soil.

It is as if baby fingers did the work of powder and dynamite. Give the clouds and the sunbeams time enough,
 and the Alps and the Andes disappear before them or are transformed into plains where corn may grow and cattle graze.

The snow falls as lightly as down and lies almost as lightly, yet the crags tumble beneath it; compacted
 by gravity, out of it grew the tremendous ice sheet that ground off the mountain summits, that scooped out lakes and valleys and modeled our northern landscapes as the sculptor
 his clay image.—John Burroughs.

Consuls Have Troubles.

The stranded American is the bane of the consul. His office is invaded by persons claiming his good offices after their plans have gone askew. Those in better circumstances demand that the consul indorse their notes at the bank, those in poorer circumstances demand to be sent home. It is apparently a fixed idea that a consul can draw on the treasury for the relief of stranded Americans. Many cases of distress are pitiable and consuls, not even recouped against the social expenses incidental to their position,
 have to give relief out of their private means and to stand the inevitable loss. The only persons whom

Ruskin's Grocery Adventure.

From time to time in the last few years various men and women of prominence have gone into the grocery business to give the poor a chance to buy small quantities at the same rate as those for which their richer brothers buy large quantities.
 Usually these plans have failed, for some reason or other. This was the case with Ruskin's grocery, for Ruskin himself found it expedient to close it. For, said he, the poor like their groceries "brilliantly lighted and eloquently ticketed," and he would compete neither with "gas nor rhetoric."

Snow-Proof Boots.

Members of arctic expeditions have found that gum boots are not proof against the entrance of moisture for snow water seems to penetrate the rubber where the boots are in more or less constant use for a long period of time. This is prevented by an occasional application of shellac, which effectively keeps the moisture out, even when subjected to the hardest wear. Shellac can also be made use of to advantage in coating the thongs of snow shoes for the purpose of resisting the moisture when moving over the wet snow. The shoes thus treated enable the men to make much better headway over the snow with less effort. The thongs which have been treated with shellac are also said to dry out quicker after use than others.

He Found "Good Reading."

A man came in and said to the other man: "Where does this quotation come, 'I said in my haste, all men are liars.' The other man wrinkled his forehead. "Bible." "Get a little closer." "How about the Psalms?" "That will do for a guess. Met a man outside who said it was something of Paul's. 'Nother man said Job. Couldn't find it in the concordance.' 'I'll look it up.' 'All right. So will I.' The next morning the other man told the first man he had found it. 'I spent two hours over it,' he said. 'Did it take you two hours to find it?' 'No. I found it right away.' He paused. 'That's mighty good reading, isn't it?'

The day of harsh pictures is gone. People want mild, easy luxuries. Doan's Kidney Pills are a drug store.

Nutmeg Poison.

A German medical journal, the Munich Medizinische Wochenschrift, gives a curious story of two cases of poisoning from nutmeg, an article in daily use in food and drink. Two servant girls partook of a mixture made up of two ground nutmegs, a small quantity of powdered cinnamon and half a liter, about one pint, of hot wine. One girl drank the greater part, the other but a small portion. Both were taken to the hospital unconscious. The one who drank the greater part remained in a stupor for three days and it was not until the fifth day that she recovered her senses. The other, who like the first developed failure of memory, vertigo and somnolence, was not so long in recovery. Nutmeg contains an etherial oil that is a recognized poison.

A Tongue Twister.

A well known Liverpool solicitor was questioning a police officer recently as to the condition of a horse. "Do you really mean to say," pressed the advocate in his best cross-examining style, "that the animal had sore soldiers—I mean to say sore soldiers—I mean—" Still there was something wrong, and the solicitor paused a moment to regain his oratorical balance, while the witness wondered dubiously whether it was a conundrum or a trap. Steadying himself for a third attempt, and deliberating over every syllable, the advocate asked whether the horse really had sore shoulders, and then expanded into a smile of triumph. When the familiar tongue-twister about Peter and his peppercorns becomes stale, suggests the Liverpool Post, here is another one: "Say 'sore shoulders' a dozen times rapidly without a mistake."

Eczema spreads rapidly; itching almost drives you mad. For quick relief, Doan's Ointment is well recommended. 50c at all stores.

LEGUMES GAIN FAVOR

Use of Vetch for Green Manure, Forage and Cover Crops.

Halry Variety Able to Withstand Winters Which Would Kill Common Kinds--Pura Ice of Importance to Country Homes.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In the growing popularity of legumes for use as green manure, forage and cover crops, vetch has played an important part. Although there are a number of species grown to some extent in this country, the two used most extensively are the common and the hairy vetch. Of the two hairy vetch is much more hardy and can be grown in almost every part of the United States. It withstands winters which would kill the common vetch and does well on land much too poor for the other. In addition, it will stand considerable alkali and much drought. On this account it can be grown successfully in nearly every state of the Union, but its chief importance will probably always be in regions where alfalfa and red clover do not meet the farmer's requirements.

Hairy vetch has so many advantages over the common variety that it would probably displace it almost altogether if it were not for the fact that the seed is so much more expensive. Under normal circumstances it can be said that hairy vetch seed is practically double in price that of common vetch. This has not only checked its utilization in the United States, but has offered an inducement for adulteration and substitution in the seed against which purchasers should guard themselves.

From a practical standpoint the examination of vetch seed should determine the following questions:

- (1) Is the seed common vetch (Vicia sativa) or hairy vetch (V. villosa)?
- (2) Is old, dead seed present as an adulterant?
- (3) Is other vetch seed or similar seed present as an adulterant?
- (4) Is the seed adulterated with low-grade screenings?
- (5) Are specially noxious weed seeds present?
- (6) Does a considerable part of the seed consist of hard seed incapable of prompt germination?

With a little experience there should be no difficulty in distinguishing between the seeds of common and hairy vetch. The common vetch seeds are slightly flattened and the profile somewhat angular. The surface is more or less distinctly mottled, some of the seeds being uniformly light brown or greenish. Hairy vetch seeds, on the other hand, are somewhat smaller, nearly spherical and roll readily. Ordinarily their color is grayish or leaden black, although new seed is often faintly mottled.

Perhaps the easiest way, however, to distinguish between the two varieties is by examining the seed scar with a magnifying glass. In common vetch this scar takes the form of a narrow wedge, with a slight ridge of a somewhat lighter color extending along the center. In hairy vetch the scar is broad, oval wedge shaped, and there is no light-colored central ridge, although there may be a split along the center.

After the purchaser has familiarized himself with the appearance of this distinctive scar in the seed of hairy vetch he should be able readily to perceive the presence not only of common vetch, but of other seeds as well, in any lot that he examines. The seed of wild vetch is, however, somewhat deceptive, since it bears a strong resemblance to that of hairy vetch. Despite this fact careful examination will show that the seed scar differs from that of hairy vetch in being more nearly wedge shaped, black, and in having a slender but distinct ridge along the center. This wild vetch is frequently used as an adulterant in low-grade lots of hairy vetch seed. Another form of adulteration commonly practiced is the addition of small-sized seeds of common vetch, probably the result of screening.

Fig. 1—Seeds of Common Vetch (Vicia sativa). (Natural Size.)
Fig. 2—Seeds of Hairy Vetch (Vicia villosa). (Natural Size.)

Another useful method of determining the presence of other seeds is to crush a small handful. Crushed hairy vetch seed should be of a lemon-yellow color. If fawn, salmon or reddish orange pieces are found the lot does not consist of pure hairy vetch seed.

The presence of old, dead seed, or of an undue proportion of hard seed, is more difficult to determine. In fact, the germination test is the only way of detecting dead seed. Instead of sprouting in four or five days after planting, each seed will merely become swollen and soft. When vetch seed is more than a year old it usually contains a considerable percentage of what is known as hard seed because this is incapable of absorbing moisture and therefore does not sprout.

Although with a little care and experience the farmer will not find it difficult to make sure that he is obtaining a good quality of seed, there is no reason why he should not grow his own seed. It is well to use a special field for this purpose, because vetch that is not cut until after the seed is matured is not as desirable a feed as that cut earlier. If the crop is put in with a tight floor much of the seed will rattle to the bottom. All that is necessary, then, is to be careful, when taking out the straw, to shake free any loose seed that it may contain. By this simple method the farmer can easily obtain his own supply.

Ice of Great Importance to Country Homes.

With winter approaching farmers will find it profitable to make every possible arrangement for harvesting and storing such ice as may be available in their localities. Ice is a luxury, and yet in many sections of the country it may be had for the gathering of the farmer is prepared for the harvest at the right time. The cost of harvesting and storing ice is not great compared with the comfort it brings, and an ample supply of this luxury is of greater importance in the country home than in the city residence. Even such farmers as are not near lakes or streams often gather quite a supply of ice by putting out pans or wooden troughs filled with water and removing the ice after the water has frozen. A special galvanized iron can which may be used in this way will be described later in this series.

Fig. 3—Seed Scar of Common Vetch. (Enlarged.)

While city people may purchase perishable supplies as needed, the remoteness of country homes from markets makes it necessary to use more canned, corned or smoked meat products at a season when the table might be supplied with other meats if there was an available supply of ice to keep it.

Not only is ice appreciated because of its use in the preservation of fresh meats, butter and other table supplies, but the production of high-grade domestic dairy products is almost impossible without it. Many markets to which milk is now shipped demand that it be cooled before shipment to a degree not attainable without the use of ice. Modern methods of marketing show other products besides milk, such as fruit and eggs, if chilled before being taken to market, arrive in much better condition. Ice in the country home, therefore, is of value for a greater number of purposes than at first might seem.

Source of the Ice Supply.
The source of the ice supply varies with local conditions. In many sections lakes, rivers or large streams afford a supply of suitable ice without special plan or preparation on the part of man. In those instances, where such natural sources are not easily accessible, small streams or even the water from a spring can be stored in an excavation or by means of a dam, so as to afford sufficient water surface to provide the desired ice supply. The harvest area or surface will depend upon the tonnage to be stored and the normal thickness of the ice in the locality. In central New York the normal ice supply ranges from 8 to 12 inches in thickness, while in eastern Virginia 4 to 6 inches is as great a thickness as can usually be counted upon.

The stream or pond from which the supply of ice is taken should be fed from a source free from contamination or pollution. If the stream is so sluggish that water weeds thrive in it, all vegetation must be removed to prevent its freezing in the ice. Decaying vegetable matter frozen in ice is very objectionable, because as the ice melts this matter is deposited in the ice box or refrigerator, rendering it unnecessarily filthy and dangerous to health.

Ponds in which green spawn or algae grow profusely can be rid of these pests by the use of copper sulphate. The crystals can be placed in a cloth sack, which is hung to a pole and trailed through the water until the salts are dissolved. One or two treatments of the sulphate during the season at the rate of one pound to 100,000 gallons of water will be sufficient to keep down such growth and make the water clear and pure. It is impossible to have pure ice unless the pond or stream is clean and the water is free from contamination.

Milk Rich in Butter Fat.
Naming the farm is fun. Farming the same is business. Put it on the barn, and on the mail box, and on the letters that go into the mail box; put it on the crates and barrels you haul to market. Aim for quality in all the name stands for. Make it your trade-mark, and it will increase your trade in the market.

Milk Rich in Butter Fat.
A thoroughly nourished cow, with a big appetite and a great digestive capacity, will give milk richer in butter fat than a half-starved cow.

Grip Left Me With a Cough

If during the winter you had the grip and are still suffering from the after effects, now is the time to get rid of it. Peruna is your remedy.

A Very Bad Cough.

Mrs. S. J. Kountz, 1015 Scovel St., Nashville, Tenn., writes: "I have a very bad cough nearly all my life. I have taken almost every kind of cough medicine, but none did me much good. I would have spells of coughing that I thought I would die myself to death. I took Peruna last winter and this winter I had no cough and I know that Peruna cured me."

"It was always thin and delicate, very easy to catch cold, but I am well now and enjoying good health. I feel that I owe it all to Peruna."

A Severe Case of Grip.

Mr. W. S. Brown, R. F. D. 4, Box 82, Rogersville, Tenn., writes: "I recommend Peruna to all sufferers of catarrh or cough. In the year of 1909 I took a severe case of the la grippe. I then took a bad cough. Everybody thought I had consumption. I had taken all kinds of cough remedies, but got no relief. I then decided to try Peruna. After taking five bottles my cough stopped and my catarrh was cured. Any one suffering with catarrh in any form I will advise them to take Peruna."

HOW FARMER MAY HARVEST THE ICE CROP

FIG. 1

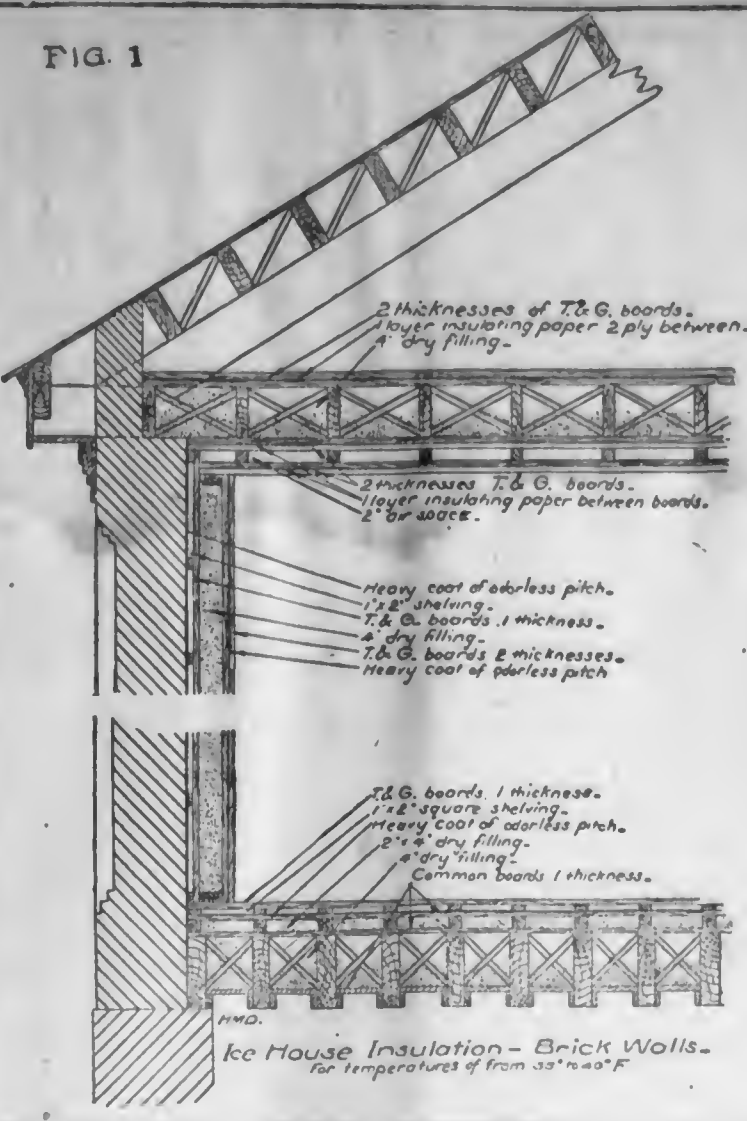

Fig. 1.—Diagram Showing the Insulation of an Ice House for Storing Ice Without Sawdust or Shavings.

FIG. 2

Fig. 2.—An Ice Plow With a Guide Gauge.

In harvesting ice, very different methods are required for that which is not over four inches thick and ice from six to fifteen inches in thickness. The thin ice generally will be broken into fairly regular cakes, which will be loaded as best they may into sleds or wagons and hauled to the storehouse. Here they should be arranged in layers and adjusted as closely as possible. The spaces between the cakes should be filled with crushed ice or snow to cause the whole mass to freeze into a block of ice as solid as it is possible to make. It is more difficult to store and keep ice of this character than that harvested in regular cakes.

Thin ice is characteristic of the southern limits of the storage of natural ice. The supply is more or less uncertain and the storage period is long. The irregular form of the cakes makes it difficult to pack the ice so as to prevent air spaces, which may form air passages and cause rapid loss. Irregular blocks and cakes are less easily insulated than cakes of uniform size and thickness. If the mass is stored in a building without packing material about it, insulation must be provided in the construction of the house. The walls must be thick, well packed with mill shavings or dry sawdust, and tightly boarded on both sides of the packing material. A space of 15 inches between the walls, tightly packed with good insulating material, is none too much. An added safeguard would be to double both the outside and inside walls. The type of wall construction suggested in Fig. 1 would be suitable for a house intended for the storage of ice of this character.

Harvesting ice from six to fifteen inches in thickness permits the use of tools and implements that find no place in harvesting thin ice. The field may be laid off so as to cut the cakes to standard dimensions of 22 by 22 inches or 22 by 32 inches. Ob-long cakes have some advantages over square ones, as they can be lapped to break joints as they are stored, thus reducing the possibility of the formation of air passages in the ice heap.

In order to obtain cakes square or rectangular in form, a square made from light strips of boards with straight edges may be used. A square with sides twelve to sixteen feet long will serve the purpose nicely. Draw a line across the ice field parallel with each side of the square and with a hand marker or with a saw accurately follow this line. By the use of a plow with a gauge attached, such as is shown in Fig. 2, the field can be cut into parallel bands or ribbons. If the harvest is an extensive one and the water is of considerable depth, after the field is plowed at right angles to the first plowing the ice may be barred off in large masses or strips and floated to the shore or loading place, where it can easily be broken by an ice spud or bar into cakes of the dimensions outlined by the plow. The use of a plow is not confined to large fields or to ice that will bear the weight of a horse. On thin ice fields a plow can be used by attaching it to a light wire cable or rope pulled by a horse on the bank.

Floe Ice.

Under certain conditions the only practicable way of obtaining a supply of natural ice is to catch it as it is going out in the spring. When the snow melts and the spring rains come, the ice at the headwaters of streams breaks up and is carried down in large masses, which can be caught at considerable distances from the localities where it was formed. In this way ice can be obtained at small cost. In the early days many plantations along the Potomac harvested an annual supply of ice of this character and stored it for the most part in pits. Those fortunate enough to live near large streams may often obtain their ice supply in this way.

MOST PROFIT FROM POULTRY

Many People Making Comfortable Living Raising Chickens and Producing Eggs for Market.

Is there progress in poultry-keeping? Read the market reports. Look at the amount of poultry advertising done today compared with five years ago. How did the winter prices of eggs in the last five years compare with other years?

Thousands of people are today making a comfortable living and many have become independent by raising poultry and producing eggs for the market. It has been proved by experience that it costs no more to produce a pound of poultry than it does to produce a pound of pork or beef, yet poultry is always worth more per pound than any other meat and sells just as readily.

FEEDING ROUGHAGE TO HOGS

Where Field Roots Grow Readily and in Good Form They Will Be Found Better Than Alfalfa.

Attention has been called time and again to the advisability of the feeding of roughage to swine during the winter. Some claim that alfalfa is the best for this purpose. In alfalfa areas it may be true that such roughage is cheaper than that obtained from any other source, but in areas where field roots grow readily and in good form, they will be found more suitable for feeding swine than the hay referred to. Both are good, and the important question in deciding which shall be fed is the cost.

FOR SILOS

Round Receptacle Gives the Largest Capacity.

Where Built Above Ground This Form of Construction Resists Strong Winds and Pressure of Silage From Within.

Experience has shown that the best form for a silo is round with the walls perpendicular. The round silo does away with corners in which silage is likely to spoil. It gives the largest capacity for the amount of material in the walls, and where built above ground this form of construction resists the winds and the pressure of silage from within better than the square silo.

When the silo exceeds 16 feet in diameter, it requires more work to get the silage to the door than in the smaller silo. It also requires a larger amount to be fed daily in order to keep the silage from spoiling on account of its contact with the air. A silo of large diameter and not very tall has more spoiled silage in it per ton of good silage than a silo of greater height. The pressure on the silage is measured by the height of the silo and not by its diameter, so that the tall, slim silo will hold practically as much silage per square foot of wall surface as the short, broad one. On account of this greater capacity of tall silos, it is seldom advisable to build one less than 30 feet in height. Where built of masonry, or where well anchored and carefully looked after, they may economically be built higher, to give the needed capacity without getting the silo unduly large in diameter.

It is a great mistake to make a silo with thin walls because the silage, particularly in the northern states, will freeze badly and not only spoils its quality but make it difficult to handle. Of course the advocates of thin-walled cement silos assert that it will freeze no more than the silage in a stave silo, which probably is true; but frozen silage, from whatever source, is not desirable.

Silage at the Illinois station has been used for the past 20 years, and they have learned how to build silos that will stand the test of time and preserve the silage. Experts at this station say that the square silo has not proved satisfactory because it is practically impossible to build this form so that the side walls will not spring out and allow the air to get in and rot the contents. In fact, very few square silos are now constructed; the round silo being more substantial and more desirable in every way.

PROTECTING STABLE MANURE

Ideal Place is Pit With Cement Bottom—Roof Made of Rough Boards Will Answer Purpose.

The annual question concerning the disposition of the stable-made manure comes up as the pile begins to assume formidable proportions. By far the best way of taking care of it is to spread it on the fields where it will go down into the soil and be in readiness for the crop which is to be sown in the spring. If it is to be stored, the ideal place is the pit with cement bottom, which will hold the liquid excrement. If this cannot be done, then store it under a shed, placing it in layers and let the hogs root it over. If even this is not feasible, then put it in piles not very high and cover with any old, rough boards—almost anything that will keep out the rain, which causes the liquid portions to leach away.

An excellent plan is to choose a There were ponies of all ages and ture, and dig a trench all around the place where the soil is of a clay nature this way save some of the liquid which may be scooped up and poured back on the pile. Use the pile as a receiver for the slop from the house, and see that it is forked over several times during the winter. The main thing, however, is to see that it is protected from the elements as much as possible.

More Silos and More Feed.
It is a pretty safe bet that there will be few empty silos next winter. Farmers are going to fill their silos and there will be more silage fed this winter than ever before.

Prejudice Against Sheep.
There seems to be a prejudice against sheep in many neighborhoods, and yet there is profit in them when they are given the right kind of attention.

Travelers will be interested to learn how to carry a suitcase or valise a long distance without becoming fatigued. A French savant, reasoning that the tired feeling is induced by the fact that the action of carrying such an object hinders the movement of the legs, makes a suggestion that is said to work like a charm. The Frenchman's way to prevent the inconvenience is to put under the arm a bulky packet made of a dozen newspapers folded. ### CULLING OUT BOARDER COWS

Farmers Need Not Maintain Charitable Institutions for Poor Animals—Keep Records.

If a farmer feeds a cow $1 worth of feed and she gives back 65 cents worth of milk—no, this is not fiction,
and the man was not a fool who fed the cow. He thought she was his faithful friend, and all the time she was ruthlessly short-changing him.
She is not the only one. It just happens that she got found out. Maybe you have a cow in your herd that skims the milk before she gives it to you.

Twenty-six Dickinson county farmers organized a cow-testing association last year, with the help of the Kansas Agricultural college. They hired a man to do the testing. He worked at the home of each man one day every month. The cost to the farmers was about $1.50 for each cow for the year. There were 379 cows entered.

Before the plan had been in operation very long some of the farmers began to sell cows. They would have been deliberately robbing themselves
if they had not sold after they found out how poor certain of the animals were.

At the end of the year the association had complete records for 134 of the cows. These 134 cows averaged a return of $2.75 for each $1 worth of feed consumed. The best one gave $3.59 and the poorest gave 65 cents for each $1 in feed. The five poorest averaged a profit of $2.30 each, and the five best cows averaged a profit of $101.28 each, for the year. What the man with the poorest animal lost $11.65, the man with the best gained $145.21. The average profit on the whole bunch was $62.31 a head.

Around Dairy Farm Standpoint
of Dollars and Cents.

Some cows ought to be milked three times a day. Their bags get so pressed with milk that they cause a great deal of pain. And then the milk will be better if drawn before it has stayed so long in the overheated udder.

Some men think that they must keep the cows always in fear of them or there will be trouble. That is a poor way to do. The cow that is always afraid that somebody will yell at her or hit her a whack with the milking stool is not in a position to do her best. She will not give as much milk and it will not be as good milk, either. Kindness is a good thing from the standpoint of dollars and cents.

The earth is dry enough now to permit of letting the calves out every day. Put them under cover nights.
You ought to have a place where the calves can always get out of the sun and the dew and rain if they want to

ATTENTION GIVEN TO COWS

Astonishing How Many Dairymen Are Keeping Bovines Instead of Animals Keeping Them.

The man who is making money in dairying is the man who thinks. It is astonishing how many men are keeping cows instead of cows keeping them, because the men do not think.
A thinking man will not keep cows
that do not pay a profit on the feed they consume. There is no way to determine the value of the individual cows except by keeping an account of the cost of feed and the value of the products of each cow.

This method often leads to increasing the profits by more judicious feeding and more efficient milking, or in other words it requires giving each cow individual attention.

Some dairymen may think that this work requires too much time, but after trying it out they are usually surprised to find how little time it really takes to keep an accurate record of the business. Every dairymen should be a business man.

Regularity is Important.

Regularity in milking and feeding is an important thing in connection with successful dairying. The cow looks for her feed at a certain time and if she is accustomed to being milked at a certain time, she will do better if that plan is followed systematically.

MEANING BACK OF WILSON'S WORDS

Question Asked If He Referred to Matter of Second Term.

President Wilson has returned to Washington from Indianapolis, where he made his first purely political speech since he assumed the presidency, Jan. 8.

Discussion was heard among the President's friends over the meaning back of his statement that "there may come a time when the American people will have to judge whether I know what I am talking about or not."

Some of his friends insisted Mr. Wilson was merely referring to the fact that future generations would judge his actions, and that he did not intend to convey the impression which was gained by his audience that he might be a candidate again for the presidency.

Others of his friends pointed out that he evidently realized, because of the cheering, the construction that had been placed on his words, and yet he did not correct the impression beyond saying, "I did not intend to start anything then."

The President is returning prepared to push his government ship purchase bill, and will seek to send to the Senate the nominations of the trade commission members as soon as possible.

President Wilson voiced a sentiment which a crowd of more than 4,000 people assembled at Indianapolis to hear his Jackson day speech interpreted as a hint that he might be a candidate for President in 1916. The people leaped to their feet and cheered until the President himself called for quiet. He arraigned the Republican party and defended the Democratic administration. Mr. Wilson referred to himself as an "animated conservative."

Forest Notes.

Forest fires in British Columbia covered more than 300,000 acres during the past year.

It is reported that there is a big market in Hawaii for box shovels for picking canned pineapple and pineapple juice.

During the past two years forest officers have killed nearly 9,000 predatory animals, more than three-fourths of which were coyotes.

The arboretum established at Washington in Rock Creek Park, through cooperation between the forest service and the District of Columbia, now contains 1,200 trees, comprising 92 different species.

There were 400 fires this year on the national forests of Utah, Southern Idaho, Western Wyoming, and Nevada, or 15 more than in the most disastrous season of 1910. Yet the cost of extinguishing them was only one-third and the damage only one-thirtieth of that of the earlier year. The difference is due to better organization now, and to more roads, trails, and telephones.

TO ATTACK BREAD TRUST

Suit to Be Filed in Supreme Court of Missouri.

Jefferson City, Mo., Jan. 10. — Suit seeking to oust an alleged bread trust of St. Louis from doing business in Missouri will be filed in the supreme court of Missouri tomorrow by Attorney General Bark, he announced tonight.

The suit will be directed against one company which, it is charged, formed a pool and trust agreement with seven others. The information will charge that the size of loaves was reduced from 16 ounces to 13 ounces under the alleged trust agreement, thereby increasing the price.

DIVIDE ALL GOOD FORTUNE

Eskimo Tribe Seems Never to Have Learned the Meaning of Selfishness.

Probably no more clannish—and unselfish—people exist than the natives of the arctic coast of Siberia, the lowest type of semi-savage Eskimos, a writer in the Youth's Companion remarks. They are ever thinking of one another's welfare, and if one comes into possession of anything of value, he never thinks of keeping it for himself, but calls the other members of the tribe to share with him. If a whale is taken, or a polar bear, caribou, or walrus is killed, the meat is divided among all the igloos. Even during the hard winter, when there is a shortage of food, if a seal is brought in by some fortunate hunter, the meat and blubber are equally distributed.

Four men from East Cape, the Siberian side of Behring strait, were taken aboard the whale ship Narwhal to make up the boat crews for whaling in the Arctic. All through the summer season they remained aboard the vessel, doing their share of the perilous and wearisome work. When the vessel returned to East Cape, on its way south, the captain made a pile of flour, sugar, hard bread, calico, tobacco, cartridges, needles and thread, tea, matches—everything dear to the Eskimo heart. It was their wages, and the Eskimo were proud of their wealth.

The walrus hide canoes came alongside and the four men were taken ashore with their riches. At the water's edge every article was delivered to waiting hands, and when the men who had worked all summer for these necessities and luxuries started for their igloos they carried all they kept for themselves in their hands. They were almost as poor as they were when they started on the cruise, but the village was temporarily happy—and so were they.

The Rex

Thomas Jefferson, son of Joseph Jefferson, will be seen at the Rex Saturday in the play his father's fame rested upon, Rip Van Winkle, based upon Irving's great story.

So many requests and inquiries have been made for a repetition on the motion picture screen of the original Rip Van Winkle, that Thomas Jefferson, Joe's son, himself an actor of no mean ability, finally consented to portray the part of Rip, which he had seen his father enact so often, and in which play he himself had often acted leading parts. Many of the properties which were used in the original Joseph Jefferson productions are now the property of Mr. Thomas Jefferson, and are used in the film production. The scenes are taken in the Catskills, just where Washington Irving laid the plot, and are rarely beautiful. Five reels of pictures are shown, and not only those who wish once more to see their old favorite, but those who are only interested in the play itself, will be more than pleased with the production.

For those who have forgotten some of the details of the story, following is given a resume of the plot:

Rip Van Winkle, an idle, worthless fellow, whose wife labors at the washtub to make a scanty living for their daughter Meenie and herself, mortgages his property, and with part of the proceeds entertains the village.

Later he attends a dance, where Gretchen, his wife, finds him embracing one of the girls. She chases him through the house, and Rip and his dog Schneider, take to the mountains. A terrible storm comes up and Rip decides to go home. Here Gretchen and Rip quarrel over his drinking, and she demands that he leave and never return. He and his dog return to the mountain in this same terrible storm, where they meet a strange little being carrying a keg, which good natured Rip carries up the mountain for him, being rewarded with a drink from the keg as reward. He falls asleep and does not awaken for over twenty years, and then finds everything is changed. He returns to the village, and here, after things look very stormy for Rip, he finds his daughter Meenie, now about to be married, and everything ends happily.

WHY WASTE TIME FRETTING?

Common Form of Foolishness Most Noticeable Among Those of Weak Character.

There is one sin which, it seems, is everywhere and by everybody underestimated, and too much overlooked in valuation of character. It is the sin of fretting. It is common as air, as speech—so common, that unless it rises above its usual tone of discordant complaining, we do not even observe it. Observe any ordinary meeting of people, and see how many minutes it will be before somebody makes more or less complaining statements of something or other which probably everyone in the room, or in the street, may be, knew before, and probably no one can help. Why say anything about it? It is cold, it is hot, it is wet, it is dry; somebody has broken an appointment, ill-cooked a meal; stupidly or badly faith somewhere has resulted in discomfort.

There are plenty of things to think about. It is simply astonishing how much annoyance may be found in the course of every day's living, even of the simplest, if one keeps a sharp eye out on that side of things. Even Holy Writ says we are "born to trouble as sparks fly upward." But even to the sparks flying upward, in the blackest of smoke, there is a blue sky above; and the less they waste on the road, the sooner they will reach it. Fretting is all time wasted on the road.

Essential to Character.

It is bitter medicine, but the one thing needed most in the human soul is discipline.

It is well to have force, genius, vigor, enthusiasm, love, power; but you may have them and be a criminal, a maniac or a cad; you become great only when to these you add self-control.

The latest movement in education is toward developing the initiative of the child. This can hardly be carried too far. And the old, stupid method of thwarting, denying and browbeating little ones, just for the sake of discipline, cannot be too roundly condemned. But for all that there is danger that in our now eagerness to find and bring out the child's forces we may forget the prime need of strengthening his self-denial.—Woman's World.

Behavior of Thunderstorms.

Rubber on one's heels as a protection against a flash of lightning—commended by the coroner at a recent inquiry—gets no support from Flammarion, who has specialized on the behavior of thunderstorms. Even an india rubber suit he thinks childish, as childish as silk umbrellas without iron ribs. Among his rules for safety, not generally recognized, is one forbidding us to run during a storm, for running causes movements of the air, and lightning is easily diverted along such a path. Don't ring bells, and avoid animals and telegraph posts, are among his hints.

Britain's Pagan Code.

"Make the punishment fit the crime," was Sir Robert Anderson's Gilbertian text at a mansion house meeting of the St. Giles Christian mission.

Sir Robert, who was once head of the criminal investigation department, said: "Our criminal law is a pagan code, and the punishment of crime supports it. The proper way of suiting the punishment to the crime would be to make a man who steals a teapot give it back, or pay compensation. That way, in five or six years, we should have a sort of deputy assistant."

Princess

Manager Stockley's special attraction for today is the Mendelssohn quartette, young ladies who give a musical concert of the great composer's masterpieces. They rank at the very head of lyceum organizations.

The fact that Sadie Beth McClaren, who heads the company, has studied abroad with Sevek and in this country with other leading masters of the violin, is of sufficient import to establish the standing of the Mendelssohns. But this is only one of many interesting things regarding the personnel and programs. Of like interest is the presence of Ruth Beebe, the cellist and reader, a talented young musician who adds to these arts those of pianist and contralto. And Rose Gergen, a violinist who has had much study and several years of professional orchestra experience adds to the singing numbers with a soprano voice of good quality, while one of the surprises of the program is Miss Frances Hitchcock, accompanist and soprano soloist. Though very small of stature and seemingly young in years, Miss Hitchcock has for many seasons been among the advanced vocal students of the Chicago Musical College, with Ella Kinsman Mann, and has had extensive oratorio and solo experience in that city.

The Mendelssohns will not displace the usual shows and there will be no extra charge.

This Wheat Bye and Bye.

A leading farmer of Christian county who has 9,000 bushels of wheat refused 75 cents for it last August and $1.25 for it last week. He is now $4,500 to the good on market reports and still has the wheat. Another farmer who sold 1,000 bu. last summer bought 5,000 bushels for future delivery and made a nice clean-up of $2,500 or thereabouts. Wheat dropped 4 cents Saturday and it takes some skill now to guess when high tide has been reached.
